MEMORANDUM FOR: Director of Training

SUBJECT: Weekly Report #18: Defense Intelligence School (DIS)
12 July - 16 July 1965

Covered in the weekly 17 June

1. Reactions from H. R. B. Singer, Inc. (acting in a consultant capacity to DIS in developing instructional materials for the Civilian Analyst Course) were glowing in regard to [REDACTED] paper on "Research Facilities and Techniques." In a personal letter to [REDACTED] of DIS, the Senior Research Engineer at Singer said "...this paper, and more of its kind, would make a significant contribution to intelligence training, I feel."

2. For the first time since I've been at DIS, a speaker didn't show up as scheduled. Frank Denny, Director of the National Indications Center, was unavoidably required to be in two places simultaneously, so he chose to send his deputy, Col. Hargett, USAF, as an unannounced replacement to speak about the Watch Committee and the support role of the NIC. I am sorry to report that this substitution bordered on the unsatisfactory.

3. The Strategic Intelligence Course, which began two weeks ago with its lowest enrollment ever, has even fewer students as we begin the third week. Thirteen Naval Reservists--about half of the original class size--left Friday; they were replaced by only five Naval Reservists for the second two-week phase. Oddly, [REDACTED] has his largest instructional support for his lowest need. three Army Reservists, including Lt. Col. Stanley Archenhold, reported today for a two-week tour in assisting with the administration of the course. Stan can be of real assistance, but Wyly is not sure of the contribution to be made by the other two temporary duty officers.

4. Our instructional facilities were sorely strained by the weekend thundershowers. Both of the auditoriums were flooded on Monday morning, but we were able to get instruction under way as planned. When I introduced the first speaker, [REDACTED] I must confess that my thoughts were on myself, for the mike had been "wiped" only a short time before and I stood in a residue of water as I presented [REDACTED] to the audience.

5. All key officials at DIS have now returned, so the many pending problems awaiting decision should begin to be resolved soon.

6. From conversations with the students in the Civilian Analyst class, I was able to obtain some supplemental information, such as the names of colleges attended and degrees earned. These data I added to an administrative roster and turned over to our Career Trainee group.

25X1A [REDACTED] scanned the list and immediately identified one CIA "turn-down" and one in whom CIA was still actively interested!
